Louis Round Wilson Special Collections Library

Carolina Inn shuttle is arranged both ways but weather allowing, the short walk is most enjoyable.

12:30 pm Main Floor Auditorium— Staff will be ready to welcome you to browse through the NC Collection Exhibit Gallery and Rare Book Room on the second floor. Other areas are open as well. The building was restored in very recent years. Built in 1929, the Louis Round Library was once the main university library and now houses the priceless NC Collection, the Southern Historical Collection, the Southern Folklife Collection, Rare Book Collection, and now home of the new North Carolina Digital Heritage Center.

“The serenely confident composition, with its Corinthian portico and Roman dome, evokes the full grandeur of Beaux Arts neoclassicism and asserts the stature of the Library as the heart and symbol of a school emerging as a major modern university.”
